

The List Of Birds Seen By Mr. Broun About Northfield

- Not to everyone is given the privilege to list so many birds about Northfield as has been seen by Maurice Broun, the well known naturalist and ornithologist who recently spent several weeks at the Northfield Hotel in beautifying and blazing many nature trails in and about the woods and on the lands in close proximity to the hotel. His visit covered a one-month stay in the spring of 1936 and six weeks this spring. In 1936 he discovered 102 different birds and in 1937 his list shows 114. Northfield is proving itself to be a bird habitat and indeed should be a bird sanctuary. As the information goes beyond our borders many will be happy of the opportunity to visit here to see for themselves as the study of bird life and an interest in it is increasing among the citizens of the nation. Mr. Broun's list is as follows, better keep it for reference:

Prof. Daggett Lists Birds and Speaks of Trip With Mr. Broun

One of the most thrilling acts of nature has just been completed—the spring migration. To the bird lover it has brought new discoveries, new songs and countless old friends among the feathered folk. Many of our most delicately colored birds have gone farther north to nest, but there are still enough summer residents left with us to act as our alarm clock at break of day. Upon first thought it would seem ideal to have all these migrants with us all summer, nevertheless we really do appreciate them more in the few days that they are here. The same thrill will be in store for us next spring.

This season it was my special privilege to do part of my observation with Maurice Broun, nature expert at the Northfield Hotel. Many a foggy morning in May would find us up before six, off on our favorite walk along the Nature Trail where Veeries and woodthrushes, oven birds, redstarts, and chestnut-sided warblers greeted us unwarily from every side. Then we would head for the swamp at the upper end of Mill Brook and soon flashing tanagers, vireos, flycatchers, the little green heron, and the sharp song of the water thrush, drowning out the feeble chant of the swamp sparrow would make us quicken our pace.

One morning we watched a gorgeous male pileated woodpecker at work on an old apple tree, for nearly ten minutes. For several mornings we had a pair of handsome wood ducks chasing each other up and down the brook. I should say that nearly a hundred of the list to follow were observed on this walk within a mile of the hotel. Needless to say, we always returned with vigorous appetites and refreshed minds to attend to the routine of everyday life.

Our trip to Ipswich, Mass., on May 22, was perhaps the most productive of all. There one finds woodland, marshes, shade trees, fresh an salt water streams and seashore. Ipswich seems to be directly in the path of the sea-line migration and the third week in May finds this whole section simply alive with birds of all kinds. Such unusual sights as magnolia and black-throated blue warblers nesting on the sand, a colony of hundreds of night herons and myriads of shore birds, must be seen to be appreciated. The following birds from our day list of 96 which would have been much larger had it not been for a dense fog, were new to me for the year:

Greater yellow legs, lesser yellow legs, bald sandpiper, least sandpiper, golden winged warbler, northern loon, sharp tailed sparrow, Arcadian flycatcher, Labrador savaugh sparrow, great horned owl, landerling, black-bellied plover, blue winged teal, ring necked plover, semi-palmated sandpiper, black-crowned night heron, baldpate and long billed marsh wren.

Of course one always has disappointments. This year I missed in Northfield several birds which were seen by other bird enthusiasts such as the white crowned sparrow, Arcadian flycatcher, golden winged warbler, blue winged warbler, orchard oriole, bob white, and blue-gray gnatcatcher. However, there is one consolation, selfish I know, that there are probably some birds on my Northfield list which some of you may have missed.

Here is my list to date, seen in this section about Northfield: Downy woodpecker, hairy woodpecker, white breasted nut-

Had Hard Storm

Last Friday this area was visited by a severe electrical storm which lasted all evening. Rain came down from several quarters and hillside roads were badly washed. The heavy peals of thunder and the weird flashes of lightning made the good old earth quake. The temperature dropped many degrees and the inside of the home was very comfortable. Fortunately the lightning service was maintained constantly, though intermittent and only a few telephones were out of service. The rainfall brings the total for June to a high figure of 3.37 inches. No report has come in of any buildings being struck by the lightning although it probably made targets of the trees back in the woods on the hillside.

Seminary Alumnae Held Big Reunion; Had Festive Days

The call for a home-coming of the Alumnae of Northfield Seminary was answered by the return of a thousand former students in a celebration of three days full of reunions and happy memories. From everywhere they came and registered by name and class year and departing on Monday all felt that they had enjoyed themselves and enriched their living.

The program of events was carried out as published in last week's Press and marked Friday, Saturday and Sunday as indeed memorable days. In the auditorium Friday evening Prof. Duley who is leaving Northfield after a teaching service of 37 years spoke of "the schools and its founder, Dwight L. Moody." At this meeting Nora Booth '28, Elizabeth Corning '29, and Maud Landes '09, paid tributes to Mr. Duley.

Alice Collis '05, in behalf of the class of 1905 presented a picture of the late William R. Moody, former President of the Schools which was accepted by Mrs. Edwin E. Chaffin, President of the Alumnae association. It is expected the picture will be hung in Kenarden hall.

The morning of Saturday Alumnae Day was marked by the procession of classes. Jean Allen '34 faculty, was marshal and the parade headed by the Kurn Hatlin band marched from Phillips hall to the Betsey Moody cottage where upon the lawn a collation was served and a group of speakers were heard. In the afternoon open house was maintained at the Homestead and other places and the guests were invited to view the mementoes of Dwight L. Moody. A meeting of song and thanksgiving in the evening in the Auditorium closed the day's activities.

Sunday morning in Sage chapel, Dr. Gailus Glenn Atkins of Auburn Seminary was the speaker and Dr. Paul D. Moody presided. In the afternoon the alumnae were taken to Mount Hermon school where a musical service was enjoyed in Memorial chapel. At 6:30 a memorial service was held to the memory of Miss Mary Silverthorne and afterward on Round Top Dr. John McDowell of New York made the closing address. The alumnae home-coming of 1937 will long be remembered.

In his address Sunday morning Dr. Atkins said in part: "You Northfield Seminary alumnae are a people of inheritance. Heredity has been good to you. You have inherited this seminary; the noble beauty of its setting, this historic valley, its shining river whose true current it not water but time. These wooding hills, these far vistas, they are to impress upon your inner eye that you see them in your dreams. You have inherited these glowing friendships of youth which never grow old, the creative comradeship of teachers, and all those overtones which make a school campus timeless haunted by a timeless music; chapel services Sunday in the old church or the lovely chapel, voices of inspiration and instruction, apple blossom days, (Continued on Page 2 Column 5)

Hermon Home-coming; Graduates To Return For Festive Days

Over on "Hermon Hill" today hundreds of former students are crowding in to fill the dormitories for a few days' stay to renew their fellowships of former years and to prove their loyalty to the school founded by Dwight L. Moody. Over one thousand members of the Alumni association are expected to arrive by train, bus or automobile to engage in a business session and many forms of joyous and serious demonstrations.

Among speakers scheduled on the program will be President James A. McConaughy, an alumnus of Wesleyan university; Dr. Henry F. Cutler, principal-emeritus, Mount Hermon school, who has been studying medicine in France and Austria for the past four years and Dr. John L. Tildsley, assistant superintendent of schools, New York City.

The guests will register today and attend a reception at Ford cottage the home of Headmaster F. Porter. An address of welcome will be heard and responded to by Frederick Newton, president of the Alumni association.

On Saturday the annual meeting of the association will be held with appropriate services. Class gatherings will be held and photographs taken. In the afternoon the program and sports will be held on Chamber's field. In the evening is the banquet in West hall which will be taxed to capacity with the large number of diners.

On Sunday, communion will be observed in Memorial chapel with the usual services of the day following.

The farewell breakfast will be furnished Monday morning when the good-byes will be said.

The committee in charge of arrangements is headed by Carroll Rickett '13.

High School Grads Finish In Study In Commencement

The senior class of the Northfield high school now go out into the world to face the future, having absorbed all of the education that the town through its educational work has provided. Whether it's business profession, work, or further education, the community will wish them well and hopes their serious life will be a credit to themselves and to the community which sends them out.

Last Sunday evening at the Unitarian church was held the baccalaureate service when the class assembled and marched in to hear an inspirational address by Dr. Charles W. Merriman of the Federated church at Deerfield. The service was presided over by Rev. Mary Andrews Conner. Dr. Merriam held close attention of his hearers. He said in part, "Life is like an auction sale and you get what you pay for. Terms are always cash. Buy gambling, drinking, stealing, laziness and ignorance and you will pay in hard cash. Buy knowledge, education, friendship, right thinking and religion and you will pay gladly for these."

On Monday evening the seniors held their class program and it was richly enjoyed. It was the final session for class social functions.

Tuesday evening the town hall was filled to witness the graduation. The complete program was carried out as printed last week, with the diplomas being awarded by Supt. L. W. Robins. The address was by the Rev. Victor Sealie, pastor of the Baptist church of Greenfield. His address filled with admonition and prophecy was of much interest and listened to attentively. During the program the Alumni prizes were awarded to Beverly Briesmaster and Elizabeth Nylo. Rose Seyfert was awarded the history medal and Pro Merito memberships were announced. Madeline Whitney, Esther Ladzynski, Lawrence Harris, Robert Russell, Anna Fisher and Elva Martineau.

Erect C.C.C. Sign

On the fountain plot on Main street at the head of Warwick avenue was placed last week a direction sign to Camp 1153 of the C.O.C. known as the Northfield camp. Arrows point the direction and states that the camp is six miles due east. It is a large and conspicuous sign mounted between two posts and quite attractive.

Girls' Conference Opening To-day; Second In Series

The Girls' Conference commenced largely of girls from secondary and private schools throughout New England, New York and New Jersey are gathering today on the campus of Northfield Seminary. An unusually large attendance is expected this year owing to the Centenary celebration. Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, rector of Trinity church in Boston will be the leading speaker.

Other conference speakers will include Dean Howard Chandler Robbins of the General Theological seminary, New York, who will speak at both services next Sunday; Dr. Harold C. Phillips, pastor, the First Baptist church, Cleveland, Ohio, who will lead the daily conference hour; Prof. James T. Cleland of Amherst; Miss Mira B. Wilson, principal of Northfield seminary; Dr. Horrell Hart, professor of social ethics, Hartford Theological seminary, who will be the principal speaker at a peace meeting to be held Saturday; and Miss Florence Newbold of Philadelphia, former head of the National Girls' Friendly society.

This conference is under the direction of the Northfield League and about 500 delegates are expected to attend.

Buffum Property At South Vernon Sold

The property of Mrs. Fanny Buffum of South Vernon located on the west side of the highway at the state line of Vermont and consisting of a large two-story and two-family house on this side of the line and a small house on the Vermont side was sold at public auction Wednesday of last week. The large property was purchased by Fred Allen for $2135 cash and R. M. Britte purchased the small place for a bid of $300 subject to a mortgage.

The store building and two other houses on the east side were not sold at this sale. Mrs. Buffum has been in very poor health and is now making her home with her adopted daughter in Greenfield. Many years ago when South Vernon was an active railroad center this property was considered well located and very desirable.

The Warwick Road Gets Consideration

Allotment of monies from the state under the provision of chapter 90 for road improvements gives Northfield, for the Warwick road, $2800 of which the state pays $1400, the county $700, and the town $700. Warwick for the same road pays a like amount with a like amount from the state and county. This means that $5600 will be spent in making the highway between Warwick and Northfield this summer particularly attractive to motorists. Nearly every town in the county receives some assistance on their roads under the county allotments.

The Garden Club

The Northfield Garden club met with Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Lawrence last Monday evening. There was a splendid attendance despite the pouring rain. In the brief interval between showers, the guests of the evening viewed the garden, but the picnic supper had to be eaten in the house, at long tables provided by the host and hostess. After supper and a short business meeting, Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Stanley told of their trip to California last winter. If the garden club departs in a body for the West Coast, it will undoubtedly be because of the delightful picture of that lovely and hospitable section of our country, which the speakers of the evening left with their audience. The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lazelle.

William H. Alexander

William H. Alexander, son of the late Col. and Mrs. William H. Alexander of Springfield, died suddenly in his 59th year at Santa Cruz, Calif., early last week, following an operation. Details of his death and burial are not available. With him at the time of his death were his sister from New Rochelle, N. Y. He leaves an aunt Miss Amy B. Alexander of Springfield and a cousin Alexander Phillips of Peapack, N. J. Relatives of the family live in Northfield.

First Conference Opened Here Monday On Christian Faith

The 58th Northfield Conference season was ushered in on Monday with the meeting of the Evangelism Council, a new conference sponsored by the Moody Centenary committee with Dr. John R. Mott, chairman of the International Missionary Council presiding throughout the various sessions which closes today.

Under the leadership of Dr. Mott and with President John S. Whale of Cheshunt college, Cambridge, England, as principal speaker, a group representative of the main streams of the Christian Protestant forces in America sought ways in this conference by which the church may become more aggressive and more intelligently evangelistic. This purpose was inspired by the life and teachings of D. L. Moody, who was born 100 years ago. George Irving, New York City, is executive secretary of the conference.

The first meeting was Monday evening in Sage chapel for a declaration of purpose. Devotional meetings were held each morning at 9 o'clock and from 9:45 to 11 o'clock sectional meetings of the following leaders:

For ministers, Dr. Jesse M. Bader, secretary for evangelism, the Federal Council of Churches in America, and William Hiram Foulkes of Newark, N. J., moderator of the Presbyterian assembly; for laymen, Adolph G. Studer, general secretary, Detroit Y. M. C. A., for religious education, Harold McAfee Robinson, secretary of the program division for the Presbyterian church; for students, Roland Elliott, executive secretary of the students' division of the National Council of the Y. M. C. A.; for youth, including high school age, Prof. Harold I. Donnelly of Princeton Theological seminary.

Dr. John S. Whale was the speaker at each morning session at 11:30 on "The Christian Message for Our Day." Speakers who addressed the 8:00 o'clock evening meetings were:

A. J. Muste, director-elect of the Labor Temple in New York City; President John Mackay of Princeton Theological seminary; Dr. Douglas Horton of the United church, Hyde Park, Chicago; President Albert Beaven of Colgate-Rochester Theological seminary; Rev. William Lloyd Ives of the St. James Presbyterian church, New York City; Dr. John McDowell, chairman of the D. L. Moody centenary committee, New York City; Dr. David R. Porter, headmaster of Mount Hermon school, who presided at Round Top meetings; Prof. James T. Cleland of Amherst college and Rev. George Cadigan of Amherst; Dr. Frank J. Sladen, chief of the Henry Ford hospital in Detroit and personal physician to the Ford family.

Many prominent clergymen and church workers are in attendance at this conference and are very optimistic of its fruitful results.

It is indeed appropriate that "A Council on Christian Evangelism for Our Day" should open the Northfield Conference season in this year dedicated to the Centenary of the Founder's birth. It was just such a gathering of Christian leaders called together by D. L. Moody in 1880 for a "season of prayer" that inaugurated not only the Northfield Summer conferences but the modern conference movement as well.

The streets about town are being oiled under the direction of the street department. The weather has been fine for this work. It will make a fine improvement.

Gives Sage Chapel New Chancel In Husband's Memory

Mrs. Wilfred W. Fry of Philadelphia who has provided sufficient funds to place a new organ in Sage chapel, which is now under construction by the Estey Organ company of Brattleboro, has added to her gift, in order to provide a new chancel in the chapel in loving memory of her late husband, Wilfred W. Fry, former president of the Northfield Schools, Inc. This means that a new arrangement will be made so that the choir and the organist and director will be located at the sides of the chancel which will be somewhat along the lines of the improvement in Memorial chapel at Mount Hermon which were made as a gift of Mr. Fry to Mount Hermon school. The details of the new chancel which will eliminate the present platform will be in design and color in harmony with the satisfying brown tones of the woodwork.

In a talk to the students of the Seminary, Miss Mira B. Wilson, principal, announced the gift and said of it: "I cannot speak with too much appreciation of what this whole plan will mean for the beauty and significance of worship in our chapel. As the architect's drawings are being developed, it is clear that the building will be in no sense more elaborate but much more appropriately constructed for its essential purpose. Mr. Fry did a splendid thing in the remodeling of the Hermon Chapel interior which proved to be a more inclusive alteration. In Sage chapel, Mrs. Fry wants this organ and chancel to be the memorial to her husband on this side of the river. It will certainly be central to the life of the school and to its spiritual life in particular, just as was Mr. Fry's work as a member and as president of our Board of Trustees."

Concrete Bridge At Nelson's Pond

Bids have been called for the construction of a concrete culvert bridge on the Mount Hermon and South Vernon roads at Nelson's Pond and will be opened at the Office of the Public Works department in Boston on July 6. There will be a slight change made in the highway. This project is one to replace the damage done at the time of the March floods of last year when the old bridge and some of the embankment went out. A temporary wooden trestle has done service for those using that highway now for some time.

Quinlan - Lakso

The marriage of Lawrence D. Quinlan, postmaster of the Northfield post office, and Miss Edna Sylvia Lakso of Springfield, Vt., was solemnized yesterday, Thursday, at the rectory of Rev. J. I. Mitchell, pastor of St. John's (Roman Catholic) church at Millers Falls. Ray Quinlan was best man for his brother, and Miss Elsie Kangas of New York City was the maid of honor.

After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's sister, in Keene, N. H., the young couple traveled by motor for a wedding trip through the state of Maine. Upon their return they will make their home in a furnished apartment in the home of Lawrence S. Quinlan on Meadow St.

Before her marriage, the bride was a registered nurse at the Brattleboro Memorial hospital. Friends will join in wishing the young folks many years of happiness and prosperity.

English Hostel Worker To Visit Northfield

The Honorable St. John Catchpool, who is the National Director of the Youth Hostels of England and will visit America this fall and comes directly to Northfield about the first of September. He will visit various sections of the United States in the interest of the work and development of youth hostels and may be accompanied by the American directors on his tour. It will be a privilege to hear him speak of the English plan of work in the direction of the youth hostels in that country.

* Indicates birds seen on, and very close to, the Nature Trail on The Northfield grounds.

Birds in italic letters indicate unusual birds. The Evening Grosbeak, for example, is an erratic winter visitor, sojourning here into May. It nests in the far Northwest.

It is interesting to note that on the Hotel's Nature Trail situated just on the edge of the golf course, trail starting at the Caddy house, ninety kinds of birds were seen this season in late April to the end of May. This trail is less than one mile long.

An outstanding visitor, the Blue-gray Gnatcatcher, a tiny kinglet-like bird, common in the far south, was seen on May 8, during a large flight. This is a rare species, but one or two have been reported yearly in Massachusetts in recent years.

Held Big Reunion

taped October days, white winter days with blue skies and blue shadows on the snow, and woven through it all the long, long dreams of youth. The alumni of Northfield seminary are a people of inheritance.

"You have inherited above all, the great creative spirit of the man who made all this and so much more possible, in a way which I think can hardly be paralleled in America he is Northfield and Northfield is D. L. Moody. He is part of the elms, the street, the valley, the hills. He is always on the campus. He is in every classroom. He is more real to those of you who never saw him or heard him than most of the living or dead. He made all this possible, built it out of his vision and his force, and he so set the seal of his spirit upon these schools, and all who inherit them that they will be through the secure generations, other and better than would have been if he had never opened to youth doors, which never opened for him in his youth."

In his closing address of the home-coming, Dr. McDowell on Round Top had this to say:

"Christian education in the mind of Mr. Moody was not distinguished by any peculiar method; it was distinguished entirely by its aim. He recognized that the methods and means of Christian education would change, and ought to meet the needs of the times, but its purpose and aims should remain unchanged and unchangeable. There was no divorce in Mr. Moody's mind between his work as an evangelist and his work as an educator. All his activities were one in his mind, and hence, wherever he was and whatever he did was preeminently the servant of Christ, and that because in his faith Christ was his Saviour, his Teacher and Lord."

"Mr. Moody was a man of singleness of purpose. His heart was in everything he did. As a salesman in the shoe store, as a Sunday school teacher, as a preacher, as a leader and as an organizer he was dominated by one great purpose: The will of God as revealed in Jesus Christ. His prevailing qualities were tireless energy, amazing common sense, and a human sympathy rarely ever equalled."

Will It Come To This?

We hear a lot these days about strikes, and unions, and picketing. The factory work is after shorter hours and better working conditions.

How about the home worker?

Is the housewife the "Forgotten Woman" in this labor question?

Someday we may hear of the formation of the Amalgamated Housewives Union—what a membership it would have!—demanding that their working hours be shortened likewise.

It's possible. Compare the woman with the all-electric home with her less fortunate sister-housewives. She works shorter hours, has more leisure, and is always fresh and rested. (She does her job better, too.) It's not because she has more money or more brains. It's simply because she has the proper tools to work with—an electric range, an electric refrigerator, a washing machine, ironer and vacuum cleaner.

Someday the women who have been slaving away the best years of their lives with antiquated household appliances will become aroused and demand the same freedom from drudgery.

In fact, a good many are doing that—right now.

EDITORIAL

Out from schools and colleges go thousands of young men and women all over our land to face the future—some with hope and some with uncertainty. Parents and communities have given liberally but cheerfully to equip their own for the struggles of life, its perplexities, its realizations and its rewards. Youth must determine its own course, the determined will succeed, the hopeless will fall by the wayside in their steps. Youth will need more than an imagination. May those who go out from Northfield by serious living and thinking reap happy rewards, a life of plenty, abundant happiness and honor to themselves and to their home towns.

Foreign debts to the U. S. came due June 15. There was no payment except Finland. There is absolutely no chance at the present time according to most observers for any adjustment of the war debt situation. The debtors cannot and will not pay and Congress is not in the mood to negotiate any reduction in the amount owed or to acquiesce in any bargain rate of payment. Repeatedly, the statement is made in the House and Senate that it is better not to have the debts paid but to let them remain on our books as a reminder to the American people that our World War experience had a costly and a futile result.
